Genre: Fantasy/Fairy Tale Allegorical/Inspirational

Joran dreams of living a simple life as a blacksmith in his forested village of Tebron. But when his wife, Charris, disappears in a whisk of magic, his dream shatters as he is forced to go on a perilous journey to the ends of the world to rescue her. The goose woman tells him he must solve the riddle of the three keys, and will wear out three pairs of shoes before he battles the Moon—who has trapped Charris in a sand castle perched above the sea.

Dismayed and fearful, Joran sets out alone, but along the way finds unlikely companionship in a wolf named Ruyah, who becomes his guide and trusted friend. In true fairy-tale tradition, Joran must face daunting challenges—within and without—in order to bring Charris safely home.

The Gates of Heaven series celebrates the reinvention of the fairy tale in the tradition of C. S. Lewis's The Chronicles of Narnia. These hope-inspiring tales, replete with unforgettable characters and engaging plots, will delight readers of any age, re-awakening the simple joy of a tale well told.

C. S. Lakin is an award-winning author of ten novels. Her contemporary drama, Someone to Blame (Zondervan) will release October 2010.
